EXPERIMENT MAY BE SALVATION OF FRUIT

Products Now Under Quarantine to Be Tested for Preserving Use.

Experiments will be made by the Hawaii Preserving Company during the "off season" in an effort to develop the fruit-canning industry on a much larger and more variegated scale than anything previously attempted in the Territory. The company's new plant at Iwilei will have little to do when the pineapple season is over, and then it is planned to give other island fruits a thorough try-out.

Local men see in this a chance to save the fruit industries that are threatened with ruin by the embargo placed on the exportation of papayas, alligator pears, mangoes and other island products, and it is predicted that if the experiments prove successful, the demand for these fruits, to be canned and shipped away, will be as great as was expected for the fresh product.

New Plant Starts.
The Hawaii Preserving Company's big plant started work this morning, and in a section of a few acres at Iwilei is now the busiest spot in the city. The American Can Company's new factory, the Hawaiian Pineapple Company's cannery, the Hawaiian Pineapple Product Company's factory for making Dole's pineapple juice, and the Hawaii Preserving Company are located in this small section. The can company is between the Dole factories and the Hawaii Preserving Company's new plant, and furnishes cans to both through chutes.

The Hawaii Preserving Company's plant was begun last February and is still not entirely complete, but before the ring of hammers has died away the

EX-GOV. FORT SEES NO "YELLOW PERIL"

Hawaii as the commanding portal to the United States is bound to figure conspicuously in the world's peace, according to the ringing sentiment expressed at a luncheon, given at the Commercial Club at noon today, the speaker of the occasion being ex-Governor John Franklin Fort, of New Jersey.

Ex-Governor Fort held the spell-bound attention of a hundred or more Honolulu business men in an address that dealt with several vital matters pertaining to business as well as government.

"We are a world power and can not escape it," was one of the stirring declarations coming from the former chief executive of the state of New Jersey. "For this reason we, as a nation have a duty to perform."

Ex-Governor Fort, described the so-called flaunting of the "yellow peril" as it pertains to Japan.

"I contend that we should sacrifice anything save honor in the attempt at the preservation of peace." He went on to state that he had spent some eight weeks in touring the length and breadth of Japan. He found a nation that professed great admiration and respect for the United States. "Everywhere I went, and I met with prominent leaders in government and in business, I found that the Japanese people were keen on maintaining the warmest friendship with our country. They have no desire for the acquisition of any possession that is now under the banner of the stars and stripes. These people have the warmest friendship for the United States. They yet recall the fact that it was through Commodore Perry at the head of the American naval forces that finally opened up their country to the commerce of the world."

Ex-Governor Fort made the prediction that within twenty years the Japanese will be using the English language as a medium of communication. Along this line the speaker further stated as his belief that the English language would be found the commercial language of the Far East and if not of the world.

"The Japanese would be your brothers, and I can truthfully say after concluding a tour of China that the Chinese possess similar sentiments."

The Flag is Absent.
One of the saddest sights ex-Governor Fort noted in all his travels was the almost entire elimination of the

BIG ARMY WILL BATTLE FOR CLEAN CITY TOMORROW; ALL CITIZENS MAY HELP

Chairman Berndt, Secretary Will J. Cooper and the general executive committee in charge of the work will be at headquarters downtown throughout the day, except for short dashes they may make to the firing line. Headquarters have been established in the rooms of the Public Service Association on King street, the former Bulletin office. Here the heads of committees will sit with their war maps and direct the general onslaught.

The organization of the campaign has been successful beyond what was hoped for, and now it remains to see how it works out. The city is divided into eleven districts, and there is a committee in charge of each. Many of the districts have been subdivided into smaller sections, with several men to look after the work in each section.

Besides the district forces and the executive committee, special committees are looking after the general divisions of the work, such as cartage, transportation, implements, and other things.

At 6 o'clock all over the city the district forces will march against the common enemy, Dirt. Armed with

MRS. McQUAID TELLS OF AUTO TRIP

The McQuaid divorce trial was resumed before Circuit Judge Robinson this morning with Mrs. McQuaid on the witness stand. James Coke, attorney for McQuaid who is contesting his wife's suit for divorce on a cross examination of Mrs. McQuaid.

Mrs. McQuaid examination at the hands of Coke was comparatively brief, dwelling most on the amount of money that was paid to her by her husband just before the time she states that she was left without support and dependent upon the charity of relatives.

In the course of seeking after further light on Mrs. McQuaid's manner of life during McQuaid's absence on Hawaii, while in charge of the census, Coke brought up an automobile trip to Hialewa when the members remained until the next day. The members of the party consisted of Mrs. McQuaid, Volney C. Driver, Mr. Dempsey and Miss Jones.

Mrs. McQuaid stated that she did not pay for the expenses of the trip and did not know who did. Mrs. McQuaid denied that she was extravagant at any time and that her outgoings were taken when she felt unwell, in this case being afflicted with what she termed "sympathetic" whooping cough.

The case will be resumed Tuesday.

Conspiracy Charged

Allegations that Harry Armitage, the local broker, has not performed his duties as trustee, but on the contrary has worked against the best interests of his trust, are contained in a bill to cause an accounting and to order a reconveyance filed by Robert William Holt in the Circuit Court today, Armitage being named as defendant.

It is alleged by Holt's attorneys, E. M. Watson and Thompson & Wilder, that a large amount of property was conveyed to Armitage in trust and two of the conveyances that were afterwards made by Armitage "were and are in the fraud of the petitioner's right and in violation of the trust and confidence reposed by petitioner in the defendant, and in contravention of the trust created, and were made and executed in pursuance of a conspiracy formed and existing between the said Arthur H. Armitage and the defendant, to wrong and defraud your petitioner."

George Fairchild, manager of the Makee Sugar Company has accepted the plan for Kapaa homesteading contained in the report of the special committee of the Land Commission, consisting of Alfred Carter and W. A. Kinney and his letter of acceptance.

June 19, 1911.
To the Special Committee of the Land Commission:
I thank you for the copy of the report of your Committee relative to the proposition I submitted for the consideration of the Commission in my letter to Mr. Carter, Chairman of the Board, under date of June 6th, wherein was contained an application for a lease of 750 acres of Kapaa cane land together with a daily flow of 8,000,000 gallons of water for a period of time sufficient to harvest one plant and one ratoon crop, under the conditions named in the latter.

SUPERVISORS FIND FEW BRIDGES ON WINDWARD SIDE MENACE TO JOY RIDING

Increase in traffic over some of the better bridges which serve to carry out the present belt-road system for the windward side of the island is declared to be responsible for their having long since served their allotted period of usefulness.

In a consideration of the new appropriation bill, the city and county Board of Supervisors are now facing the necessity for increased expenditure along this particular line. Some of the structures are said to have become a menace to the amount of traffic that continually passes over them.

A visit just made by the city and county road committee to Koolau-poko district shows that there has been much work done under the direction of Road Supervisor Paole.

The road committee first noted the filling of Kaneohe section from the crossing-drain at the foot of Puuuli Hill.

Paole is reported to have used 120 barrels of crude oil in Kaneohe section. (Continued on Page 8)

EX-SUPERVISOR WILL SUE COUNTY

James Quinn, former supervisor, is planning to institute a suit against the county unless it pays him for the value of a $250.00 horse that he had to shoot last night after the animal had been run down and its leg broken by the automobile of the Police Department.

"The police machine was in charge of David, the regular driver at the time," stated Quinn this morning. "It has been breaking the speed limit all the time and last night was no exception when it ran down my horse. If the county refuses to pay up I will certainly bring suit."

The accident occurred at the corner of Richards and Merchants streets.

Quinn states that he does not see why the police automobile should have special privileges in breaking the speed law.

OAHU BELT ROAD WORK TO COST $250,000

Two hundred and fifty thousand dollars is the estimate placed by Giles H. Gere, consulting engineer for the belt-road commission, on the cost of completing the belt road system around the island, and of this only $200,000 was appropriated by the last Legislature. Consequently, the commission is facing the fact that part of its work must be left undone until the next Legislature makes further appropriation.

The commission has come to a decision on the main features of its work, but the actual letting of contracts will not be reached for some weeks. City Engineer Gere, who is consulting engineer for the commission, has submitted a brief outline of work to be done that has been approved and which will form the basis of the commission's procedure.

This outline divides the work to be done into nine sections, and a number of separate contracts are to be let. In some cases, contracts can be let for more than one section. For instance, a stretch of ten miles, from Kipapa gulch to Waiwala, in which are included sections 8 and 9, can be provided for under one contract, the work being similar.

The commission's problem is to connect the scattered links of road now surrounding the island, and not only this, but in some cases to relocate the road for considerable distances. Oil-filled macadam is the material to be used, completing the present macadam system.

The committee has decided that the first work shall start on a five-mile stretch at Heela, and after this the ten-mile piece from Kipapa gulch to Waiwala will receive attention.
